

Drug testing contemplated by Venice

By Andy Slaring
Staff writer

VENICE — The mayor, the City Council and all city employees will be tested for drugs under a plan given preliminary approval by the council. Venice would be the first of the Quad Cities to have such a rule. City Attorney Casper Nighohossian will draft an ordinance for presentation, probably at the next council meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 1.

The proposed ordinance would require periodic, unannounced drug testing for all city workers. The mayor and the council have volunteered to take them first.

During discussion last Tuesday night, Alderman Henry Fletcher asked if workers would be tested for alcohol. "I like a cold beer once in a while," Fletcher said.

"We ain't talking about that cold beer," Mayor Tyrone Echols responded. "We're talking about that cold cocaine."

Alderman John Ervin said, "I won't vote for it unless all the city officials take (drug tests) first."

"That's what we'll do," Echols said. The matter had been discussed previously and Alderman Charles Collins brought it up again at the meeting.

Echols said later that the council had taken the action because, "We think we have a problem in Venice — not necessarily in the work force. We want to set an example for the community."

Echols said he first began considering such a policy after reading of a small town in Missouri that had done the same.

Echols was asked if the ordinance would require the suspension or termination of a city employee who tested positive for drugs and whether it would allow a worker to seek treatment for a drug problem instead of being terminated.

"I think we would be humane," Echols said. But he said all those details would have to be decided by the council. He was asked if the results of the testing of city officials would be made public.

"That's hard to say," Echols said. "We don't want to get involved in something illegal," he said, meaning such revelations could be construed by the courts as a violation of privacy rights, just as medical records are protected under law.

Other cities have adopted drug testing of municipal workers in Illinois.

Pumps fail, streets fill

GRANITE CITY — Even in the wastewater business, timing is everything, according to Terry Kelahan, Regional Wastewater Treatment plant superintendent.

Bad timing is the way he explained the short, but unusually severe, street flooding during the storm Friday morning.

"During the storm this morning we had a power line fall on the fence at the pump station and somehow it shorted out the whole pump station," he said Friday afternoon. "The pump station pumps all the storm water and sewage into our plant where it is treated and then put into the Mississippi."

"When the pumps go down, we can't pump anything into the plant. We have to open the gates and let everything flow, by gravity, directly into the river. That's what happened this morning. "It only took about 15 minutes after the pumps stopped to open the gate and get it going into the river, but unfortunately it was right in the middle of the storm. We got two inches of rain in that one hour, so there was a lot of water backed up."

A gauge at Lock and Dam 27 in Granite City recorded 1.11 inches of rain between 6 a.m. Thursday and 6 a.m. Friday; and another 1.2 inches of rain after 6 a.m. Friday.

Kelahan said a power crew was working on the pump station and he expected it to be back in operation by mid-afternoon. "We can't figure out what happened," he said. "We just put that line in two years ago, so it should never have broken. But I guess that's the way it is with storms."

Granite City OKs '89-'90 budget

GRANITE CITY — The general fund budget for 1989-'90 reflects exactly the amount of revenue the city expects to get, $11,696,168.

The new budget, approved Tuesday night, contains only minor changes from the last two budgets, according to Comptroller Kim MacTaggart. With 65 percent of the total going to salaries and related personnel expenses, MacTaggart said there has been little discretionary spending in the budgets.

"Nothing exciting, it's just a bunch of numbers," he said.

Last year, the budget was for $11,153,336 with an expected surplus of $7,010. This was altered by a transfer of $180,000 from the general fund to the capital improvement fund, creating an expected deficit of $172,990.

MacTaggart estimated the actual deficit is less than that, leaving the city $39,889 better off than expected.

"I'm not done auditing it, but I am 99 percent sure that is exactly what it will be," he said.

Because the money causing the deficit wasn't actually spent, but just transferred to another city fund, MacTaggart said that a case can be made that the city, overall, actually ended the year with a surplus.

"The city is in good financial health," MacTaggart said. "We don't spend more than we take in. We do spend just about all of it, we're not building up a surplus, but we have good fiscal management."

"When the aldermen ask me if we have the money and I say no, they don't spend it. They listen to me. I guess in places like East St. Louis they just go ahead and spend it anyway."

The 1989-'90 capital projects fund budget is $1,735,332. It includes $475,000 for the purchase of the Koetting Ford property in the downtown area and $180,000 for other land acquisition.

Also included in capital projects is $605,654 for sewer breaks.

Madison rehires more teachers

By Nicole Vaughn

MADISON — Amid cuts that the District 12 board has made during the past several months, several faculty members are slowly being recalled.

In March, 29 teachers were honorably dismissed. Of those, 15 were rehired during a special meeting in May. Thursday night, four more teachers and a teacher's aide were rehired.

The board unanimously followed the recommendation of Superintendent Dan Kostenski to rehire: John Petish III, kindergarten at Harris School; Flora Van Koten, English at Madison High School; Yolanda Williams, business at MHS; Debra Williams, speech therapist; and Charles Cessna, tutor.

Added to the cuts were assistant principal positions at both the Madison Middle School and high school. Roger Benway and Luvenia Long, who held those positions respectively, have been reassigned.

The board has already announced plans to cut band, soccer, boys baseball, girls softball and football and basketball at the freshman and sophomore level. Curriculum cuts include French, Chemistry II and III, and

4 Brooklyn men plead guilty in fatal beating

BELLEVEILLE — Four Brooklyn men have pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the fatal beating of another Brooklyn man last August.

Those charged were Theodor A. Davis, 31, of the 100 block of North Fifth Street; Craig Miller, 39, of the 700 block of Washington Street; Ralph Wellmaker, 30, and Forrest Newbern, 34, both of the Thomas Terry Apartments, Brooklyn.

The victim was David Johnson, 40, also of the Thomas Terry Apartments, who was beaten during an argument on Aug. 14, 1988, a yard outside the apartment complex.

Johnson was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for emergency treatment and was transferred to St. Louis University Hospital, where he died two weeks later. Scott Mansfield of the St. Clair County State's Attorney's Office said.

The four men had been charged with first-degree murder, but entered guilty pleas in exchange for the involuntary manslaughter charge.

Involuntary manslaughter is punishable by up to five years in prison, Mansfield said.

Their pleas were entered Monday in the Circuit Court at Belleville.

Chouteau I construction to start soon

By Valerie Evenden

PONTOON BEACH — Construction will soon start on streets, sewers, drainage and water lines for the second construction phase of Chouteau Trace I Redevelopment Project.

The new area to be developed extends west of a completed section on the west side of Illinois 111 at Engineer Road.

The 68-acre site is south of Interstate 270 and north of the Timberlake Subdivision.

Among the projections for the area are duplex housing, McDonald's Restaurant, Remington's Restaurant and Lounge, Omni Bank of Pontoon Beach and a home for the developmentally disabled.

Several duplex residences already are built and construction of McDonald's Restaurant is scheduled in late summer.

The second bond closing for the Chouteau Trace I Tax Increment Financing District took place July 10 at Magna Bank.

The issue was for a total of $210,000. The bonds were purchased by B.T.L. Enterprises Inc., a firm owned by the Lucas family which is developing the area.

John Talgren, bond trustee for Magna Bank, and Attorney Lew Greenbaum, representing the bond counsel firm of Katten, Muchin and Zavits, Chicago, attended the closing.

Also present were Mayor Glen Wilson, Village Clerk Mary Warren, who also is a member of the TIP Commission, Village Attorney Keith Jensen, Stan and Alice Lucas of B.T.L. Enterprises, B.T.L. Attorney John Gibbons and James E. Stuart, site engineer of J.E. Stuart & Associates, civil engineering firm.

Total proceeds of the bond sale, after discount, was $191,100.

Construction in the second phase will start when performance bonds are posted by the successful bidders, Warren said.

Cold chicken, hot suspects, Madison makes the arrest

MADISON — Two men were charged with burglary after eight cases of frozen chicken destined for Burger King restaurants disappeared from a truck trailer July 1 at the Gateway Midstate Truck Plaza, 699 Illinois 203.

James Edward "Snokey" Faulkner, 24, and Wilford Napoleon Jones, who also goes by the name Wesley Augustus Moore, 34, both of East St. Louis, have been charged with burglary in felony informations issued through the St. Clair County state's attorney's office.

Jones also was charged in a Madison County warrant alleging probation violation.

Both Jones and Faulkner were transferred to the St. Clair County Jail in Belleville.

The men were captured by Madison Patrolmen R.E. Burris and Eric Back at Wilson Avenue and 15th Street, East St. Louis, after a car was chased through several streets in that area.

Several cardboard boxes containing frozen chicken meat allegedly were on the rear seat of the vehicle, a police report said.

A witness noticed truck driver Terry Thompson of Batesville, Ark., walk into the truck stop from his vehicle and then saw a brown Chevrolet auto pull up behind the truck. Allegedly some boxes were removed from the vehicle, it was reported.

Eight cases of frozen chicken destined for Burger King restaurants, taken from truck stop, allegedly turn up in back seat of car stopped by police.

After Thompson was notified by the witness about the incident, the driver checked his truck and reported the seal was broken on the rear doors and eight cases of chicken were missing.

The car seen near the truck had left the parking lot, heading south on Illinois 203, police were advised. At Ninth Street and Exchange Avenue, the car was spotted by Burris.

Burris followed the car south on Exchange to 13th Street, where the suspect turned west in Walter Avenue and south on Walter to 13th Street, where the car was stopped.

'Piranhas on a feeding frenzy' at the race start

SEMC triathlete Personal challenge that's 3 times as fun

By Ken Moser

St. Elizabeth Medical Center

It's eight o'clock on a Sunday morning, a time when most people are probably still snoozing in bed or wolfing down breakfast.

But not Dave Schenck. He's been up for more than two hours already, gearing up for a day of "fun."

Fun translates into a three-quarters mile swim, a 26-mile bike trek and a 10-kilometer (6.2) run, one right after the other. The drive to site of the triathlon is the easiest part. But it's a long haul, nonetheless, from his log cabin home in Crescent, Mo. (near Six Flags, in Eureka) to Lake St. Louis, a community located 25 miles north of Lambert Airport.

The triathlon attracts competitors — both male and female — of all ages, with the oldest being 60 and the youngest, 15.

Schenck has plenty of company at the event. He moves out into the murky lake water with hundreds of other swimmers as he prepares for his first leg of the triathlon. He loosens up and fidgets with his swim cap and goggles for the first time.

The start of the race looks similar to piranhas having a feeding frenzy. "The water is just churning, and there are all of these bodies flailing," Schenck says. "It's wild."

Indeed it is. In a few minutes, he's out in the middle of the lake battling choppy water, bobbing sticks, cramps and boat exhaust.

For 29½ minutes he does his best impersonation of Aquaman before scurrying up a hill to hop on his bike, a Raleigh 15-speed, and receive an hour-plus blow dry.

The course sends him and the other cyclists along rural roads that snake through picturesque countryside. The scene can get really ugly, however, if someone gets a flat tire or wipes out at speeds ranging from 20 to 40 miles per hour.

Schenck enjoys a trouble-free ride but can't say the same about the race on foot. To him it seems like it's just never going to end.

But 52 minutes after starting the run, he sprints across the finish line in what proves to be his best time ever — 2 hours, 45 minutes and 57 seconds. A feeling of success hits him immediately.

"It feels great," he says, catching his breath.

He seeks out a cup of water at the table behind the finish line, only to find there were no cups available. After a brief wait, he finally gets to quench his thirst and gulps down two cups of water.

At triathlons, there isn't any other place Schenck, a social worker at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, would rather be than here today.

Finishing first isn't as important as finishing. Remaining conscious is nice, too. He comes not only to test the course and the race, but most importantly, to test himself.

"It's the personal challenge of it all," he said. "As long as I improve every year, I'm satisfied."

The Lake St. Louis Triathlon has brought him back the past four years now, and each year he's bettered his time. This year, he trimmed off six minutes.

"I don't know if it was the weather that helped me this year or not, but I thought I was in better shape this time."

Schenck, 33, says he trained for roughly three months prior to the triathlon, even to the point where he was pedaling on a stationary bike while his arm was still in a sling following shoulder surgery in late December.

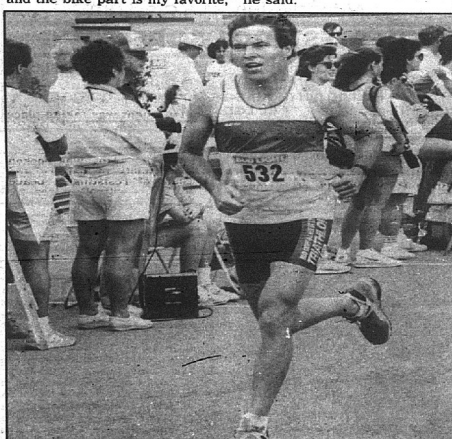

"The worst thing for me this year was the run," he says, reflecting on the race. "I got a cramp about a mile into the run, and it grabbed me like a vice. I was bent over at the first water station, and it never really went away during the whole race."

Schenck trained in pools at St. Louis University and the YMCA in Granite City, to prepare for the event. As race day drew closer, he practiced his strokes in the Meramec River.

Schenck said he loves to "fly" on his bike.

"There were five or 10 of us guys who played cat-and-mouse the whole way on the bike route," he recalls, noting no one ever passed him. "I was going as fast as I could."

"The swimming portion of the triathlon is my least favorite and the bike part is my favorite," he said.

Briefly ...

Fences, QuikTrip back again

GRANITE CITY — Two hot items on the last agenda of the City Council will be reappearing on the next one.

A new fence ordinance that changes the maximum fence height allowed in residential areas from 4 feet to 6½ feet was referred to the Planning and Zoning Committee for possible amendment. It was submitted by Building Inspector John Jakich.

The council also deferred action on a variance to allow QuikTrip to develop the former site of Charlie's restaurant on Nameoki Road. Fourth Ward Aldermen Dan Partney and Dan Brown said there were still questions about a sewer line at the rear of the building. The city's Zoning Board of Appeals has recommended the variance. A variance allowing development of the adjacent lot, former site of Winner's Circle liquor store, was also deferred by Partney and Brown.

Appointments approved

VENICE — Mayor Tyrone Echol's appointments to city offices were all confirmed during a council meeting Tuesday night.

All but two were reappointments: Chief of Police Farris Smith; Fire Chief Willie Dumas; Comptroller Roseanne Koelker; Street Superintendent Clarence Bradley (promoted from assistant superintendent because Tom Scaturro retired in April); City Attorney Casper Niglikossian; McKinley Bridge Manager Tom Fields; Maintenance Supervisor Alfred Crawford; Bridge Office Manager Elma Stanley; Building Inspectors Joe Brooks and Roland Wilson; Health Inspector John Essington; Civil Defense Director Benjamin Honorable; Police Commissioners Harold Wilson, Tim Bennett, Earnest Davenport, James Baker and Lennil Johnson (new).

At the recommendation of the Board of Police Commissioners, Corporal James Bennett was promoted to sergeant to fill Joe Meehan's post, who retired.

To the editor:

Hard numbers convey hard realities.

Child abuse reports made to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services are up 85 percent in three years. Drug-exposed infant births are up 414 percent over the same period. In fact, almost every measure of the causes and effects of child abuse has hit a new high recently.

But statistics do more than describe the size of problems. And researchers are more than stereotypes chained to computer terminals. Both are powerful forces of change.

Statistics explain problems and outline trends. Most of what our agency knows about AIDS, sex abuse, youth crime, alcoholism, and dozens of other social issues has come through statistical analysis. A 1988 study conducted by Illinois State University, for example, revealed much about how DCFS social work has changed in recent years. According to the results, between the years 1976-86:

•The proportion of client children who were sex abuse victims has more than tripled — from 6 percent to 26 percent.

•The proportion of client parents with identified substance abuse problems has risen nearly two-thirds — from 26.4 percent to 41 percent.

•And the number of outside agencies involved with an average DCFS case has doubled — to over six agencies per case.

Research and demonstration projects at DCFS are among the most prolific generators of practical information. Millions of dollars have been invested in recent years to support these state-of-the-art endeavors. Programs like "Project Futures," a multi-agency effort to curb the rising number of perinatal health problems caused by mothers taking drugs, are testing new treatment methods of this emerging social epidemic. Another program, "Focus on Families" recently won national recognition for its success in decreasing the time children spend in foster care.

Social services once had a notorious reputation for producing "soft" and "unmeasurable" results. But platitudes are not good enough in today's world of increased competition for scarce tax dollars. Hard numbers and project results supply the concrete evidence that government purse holders expect. DCFS has been quick to respond; and thousands of vulnerable children and families benefit, because our arguments are rock solid.

Protecting children and nurturing troubled families today demands more than yesterday's tools can deliver. It requires an expanding vision of the world around us, and the ability to create new tools to fight problems that weren't around a decade ago. Research is the powerhouse teaching us how to save money, save time, and save lives.

Some fear that listening to numbers cranked out of computers will lead to heartless, passionless decision. I disagree. Experience has taught me that technological insight isn't robbing us of our compassion — it's opening our eyes to the real world and providing fresh paths to reach into people's hearts.

Animal protection group again opens to public

The Association for the Protection of Animals shelter is open to the public once again, thanks to the response of the people in the community.

A year ago, we had to close, due to lack of funds for food and medication. The members have never stopped working for the benefit of the animals. We held many projects to raise funds to be able to reopen our shelter, and have continued to investigate cruelty cases. We also had many animals which had not been adopted previous to the closing, that needed care, cleaning, food and homes. The shelter is open for adoptions from 9 a.m. to noon and 6 to 8 p.m. daily, and we have a good choice of dogs and cats presently that need homes.

We also have a lost and found program. If you have lost a pet or have found one that may be lost, call 931-7030 and report it. We may know where your pet is.

We are in need of volunteer and new members. If you have a couple of hours available, call us. We need you.

We are looking for dog houses. Donations of food can be dropped into baskets at Schnucks and National, or will be picked up by members. Donations may be mailed to the APA, P.O. Box No. 1311, Granite City, Ill. 62040.

ROSE ATKINS, Dog and Cat Supervisor

Flags first, what next?

To the editor:

Today, they are allowed to burn our American flag in protests.

Tomorrow, they may be allowed to "burn" our Constitution.

After that, what then?

The recent Press-Record editorial in which the Press condoned the burning of the flag under the rights of the First Amendment, etc., I don't agree with. It's too lenient when it comes to burning our American flag — an amendment should be added to this to prevent the flag burning for whatever reason and a prison term enacted for violators ... things are going too far.

You can't escape alcohol's effects

To the editor:

My husband was an alcoholic all of his life, until two years ago. He had always said that alcohol would never get him, he was invincible.

Two years ago we were on vacation, he woke up on morning and said he didn't feel well. We got him back home, they admitted him to the hospital, told us we would be lucky if he made it.

Alcohol affects everyone there is no one who can escape it forever.

He now has cirrhosis of the liver, chronic pancreatitis, and alcoholic hepatitis.

He wrote this poem in hopes that it might help just one of many persons out there who think alcohol is under their control.

I have a dream
One day in life
I was having fun
drinking and laughing like everyone.

I went for years
till it got my health for now I'm suffering
inside myself.
Because you see

I was so naive
of only the things
I couldn't believe.
Alcohol is a thing
you will never forget because it will haunt you to your death.

You can go to the top
if you have that dream
without alcohol, drugs, or anything.
For the young and the old
I hope you will not see what alcohol and drugs did for me.

Budget revised to renovate former dental clinic area

EDWARDSVILLE — A revised budget and project description for renovation of the former dental clinic at the Alton campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville was approved July 13 by the SIU Board of Trustees.

The total project cost now is estimated to be $1,150,000, an increase of $231,700 to accommodate new cost estimates developed during preliminary design activities.

Resources for the first phase of the project, in the amount of $663,300, will come from Build Illinois funds appropriated to the Illinois Capital Development Board for university repair and renovation projects over three previous years.

Subsequent phases of the renovation project will be funded from a combination of future capital appropriations and university operating funds.

The project, to provide classroom, preclinical laboratory, and office facilities, was approved initially by the board last June.

The first phase will provide for one laboratory complete except for casework, a second laboratory shell, laboratory support areas, a lecture hall, and a locker area.

The new clinic at the Alton campus was opened during the summer of 1987, leaving the former clinic building to other uses.
